

ABSTRACT

The invention is a method and apparatus for managing the secure acquisition, storage and disclosure of confidential information through the use of: (a) biometric keys to lock data storage devices; (b) a secure data input/output device and authorization procedures to facilitate identity rights management; and (c) the use of metadata techniques to preserve the anonymity of disclosed personal data.